

Checking Liquor consumption	A blanket ban on liquor consumption.	While dealing with employment loss and also checking the circulation of sub-standard liquor
Reducing suicide cases	Criminalizing suicide attempts and abetment of suicide.	This needs to be coupled with a massive awareness of clinical depression and counseling measures to deal with it.
Protesting against a policy decision.	Aggressive protests including burning effigies, traffic jams, rail roko , etc.	But first peaceful measures like negotiations, petitioning, etc. must be employed.
Population control	Mass sterilization programmes.	After sex education campaigns and sensitization on the topic of population growth.
Infrastructure development	Fast approvals for the development of industries for faster developments.	Consent of all the stakeholders must also be taken into account before the land acquisition or forest clearance etc.
Dealing with economic inequality	Increase the number and rate of taxes on the top 1% and spend tax generated for the welfare of the lower strata.	Also focusing on the generation of employment so that lower strata can also generate their own income.
Dealing with insurgencies and violent eruptions in the country	Deploy the army or paramilitary to counter the insurgencies.	Making simultaneous efforts for reaching a peaceful settlement with the extreme elements.

Therefore, the need is to strike a balance between the two schools to reach conduct that is not just ethical but also pragmatic. (521 Words)

Q.2) a) Are moral standards universal or do they vary across time and place? In what ways do you think religion plays a role in determining the moral standards of an individual?

Approach: Introduce by defining morality and refer to different sources of morality. In the main body express and explain your opinion regarding variability of morality. In the next part discuss the impact of religion on morality of a person. In the conclusion mention the necessity of variability of morality in certain situations.