MILL'S MODIFICATION

- Bentham believed - Happiness is as good as poetry. Mill said that pleasure not only differ in good quantity but also in QUALITY. What can satisfy a common man cannot satisfy Socrates.
- Mill rendered felicitic calculus to measure pleasure by Bentham's method as quality can't be measured.
- Mill differentiated between HAPPINESS and Pleasure. Bentham believed Pleasure to be direct experience. Mill established that Happiness ~~as~~ is prior to pleasure and comes by SACRIFICING pleasure.

Thus, although Mill considered himself as disciple of Bentham, he ended up [destroying utilitarianism] by his modifications. Mill is known as 'Peter who defied his Master'.
