A. Introduction

Mr. X is a Civil Services aspirant. He has cleared Mains Examination and awaits Personality Test in few days. He decides to book flight ticket and it was around 11:50 PM, the moment he decided to book the ticket it was 12:00 AM. His internet pack was over. Without other internet or call options he could not do anything. Next day he did recharge at a shop and tried booking tickets but all were booked except last one flight on the night before his day of interview. In last minute while leaving his home he realized he forgot his college degree which should be mandatorily submitted at interview and took lot of time to find it. Time for flight has come close and the cab he booked dint arrive on time, finally when he entered the airport his flight has just taken off. Coming 2000 Kms away from Delhi he planned now to go by car but he could not reach interview on time as he was 30 minutes later his admission was denied. It was his last attempt and no more attempt is left.

Yelling on this from the road when he communicated to his mother she said "My son, time waits for none, respect it henceforth".

Delays ranging from nanoseconds to minutes shatters a person's life and life takes a U-turn.
